The George Mason University Libraries
Present
The 2009 Fenwick Fellow Lecture
Halaevalu F. Ofahengaue Vakalahi
Associate Professor
Department of Social Work

Pacific Islander Roots and American Wings
This project is framed by a review of the existing literature in relation to factors that impact the functioning of immigrant Pacific Islander Americans and provides a personal narrative of the researcher’s immigrant family’s experiences with the nuances of immigration.

John G. Dale & Tony Samara
Assistant Professors
Department of Sociology and Anthropology

Legal Pluralism within a Transnational Network of Governance: The Extraordinary Case of Rendition
This project addresses how the Bush Administration constructed a highly secretive transnational network of state executives, intelligence agencies, corporations, professional attorneys, psychologists, interpreters, and academics.
Monday, April 6, 2009
3 p.m.

Mason Hall
Edwin Meese III Boardroom
George Mason University, Fairfax, Virginia

Please RSVP to LIBRSVP@GMU.EDU or 703-993-2251
The Fenwick Fellow Program is sponsored and administered by the Office of the University Librarian. Each academic year, one or two fellowships are awarded on a competitive basis to Mason faculty members to undertake a research project and to enhance the Libraries’ collections. Fellows receive an office in Fenwick Library for the year and a monetary award that supports both acquisition of new library materials and research support for the Fellow. The following year, each Fellow presents a public lecture on their individual research topics. For more information about the guidelines for the Fenwick Fellow Program, please visit http://library.gmu.edu/fenwickfellow/FF_guidelines_2009.pdf.